NEW ZEALAND WINE FAIR: STOCKHOLM

4th October 2010

I am delighted to welcome you to today's trade tasting at Festvåning Cirkelen. This is the second time that New Zealand Winegrowers have held a formal trade tasting in Stockholm and our presence here again demonstrates the desire for New Zealand wine producers to broaden the availability of their fine wines in the Nordic marketplace and, in particular here in Sweden.

At the tasting today you will see a strong representation from all of New Zealand's major winegrowing regions and many of the key varieties. The room has been arranged where possible by region and this catalogue is indexed by both region and variety so that you can experience the true diversity of the wines now being exported. As well as examples of the newly bottled 2010 vintage white wines (which many believe to even surpass the quality of the great 2009 vintage) there will be a broad range of red and white wines from older vintages on show.

Genuine commitment to sustainability has been a guiding principal for the New Zealand wine industry for many years. Sustainable winegrowing is a central part of our grape growing and winemaking ethos and we have recently announced that 100% of New Zealand grapes and wine will be produced under independently audited sustainable schemes, or farmed organically, by vintage 2012. In order to demonstrate our commitment to this goal, all 2010 vintage wines must have already been certified by SWNZ (Sustainable Winegrowing New Zealand) in order to participate in this tasting.

New Zealand wine exports to all major markets around the world are growing at +22% (MAT July 2010) and, despite difficult recessionary conditions in many markets, wine consumers appear to understand and appreciate the very high quality / value relationship that exists with New Zealand wine and therefore the wines command above average retail prices. This is justified by continuing evidence that consumers appreciate the premium quality and the prestige that these wines offer.

Within the room you will notice two additional 'self-pour' themed tables. The first table is focused on the regional diversity of Pinot Noir and we encourage you to taste through this representative range and discover the elegance and finesse, but also the regional diversity of these wines. The second table is aimed at demonstrating the regional diversity of Sauvignon Blanc wines, not just from the Marlborough region. In fact, it must be noted that there are some distinctive differences within the sub-regions of Marlborough itself. Members of the team will be on hand to answer any questions you may have on this or any other topic.

Finally, you will notice that many of the wineries exhibiting at this tasting are seeking distribution and representation. This clearly illustrates the desire within New Zealand to expand and showcase their fine wines in this important market. Thank you for coming and we hope you enjoy the tasting.

NEW ZEALAND WINE – 100% SUSTAINABLE BY 2012

In June 2007 the New Zealand Wine Industry agreed to build on over a decades worth of commitment to sustainability by implementing a broad based and all encompassing sustainability policy.

THE GOAL: For all New Zealand Wineries and Vineyards to be operating in accordance with an independently audited sustainability programme by vintage 2012.

THE METHOD: To ensure achievement of this goal, New Zealand Winegrowers has introduced a number of pioneering initiatives, including:

- Industry funding into Carbon Calculator for winery greenhouse gas emissions
- Research and development of alternative organic fungicides
- Energy benchmarking study and establishments of industry benchmarks
- Requires that wines presented at NZW events from vintage 2010 onwards have been produced under an independently audited sustainability programme

THE MEASURE: New Zealand Winegrowers has selected a number of esteemed certification systems that are to be recognised by this policy:

- Sustainable Winegrowing New Zealand (SWNZ)
- Biogrow and CertNZ – Organic Certifications
- Demeter – Biodynamic Certification
- ISO 14001 Environmental Certification

THE PROGRESS: The industry is well on its way to achieving this goal, currently:

- Over 85% of New Zealand Wineries are operating under an independently audited sustainability programme
- Over 93% of New Zealand's wine production capacity is operating under an independently audited sustainability programme

SUSTAINABLE WINEGROWING NEW ZEALAND (SWNZ)

Developed and managed by New Zealand Winegrowers, SWNZ is a viticultural and winemaking framework and accreditation process based on best practice policies for protecting the environment whilst remaining economically sustainable.

SWNZ was established in 1995, at which time it was focused on vineyard management, in 2002 this was extended to winery management policies. In the vineyard, SWNZ covers such aspects as use of fertilizers, control of pests and diseases, water and energy use and biodiversity. In the winery, SWNZ focuses on winery waste management and water and energy efficiency.

Today a total of over 100 New Zealand Wineries, approximately (75% of wine production) and 900 New Zealand vineyards (20,000Ha+ or 70%+ of producing area) are accredited by SWNZ.

Sustainability is about meeting the needs of today, without adversely impacting on the needs of tomorrow.

WOOLLASTON ESTATES

Woollaston Estates produce high quality, distinctive wines in Nelson, New Zealand, under the Woollaston, Tussock and Wingspan brands. A gentle and natural approach is taken during the growing of grapes and making of wine, with the minimum of human intervention allowing the fruit to fully express the place in which it was grown. Characters defined in the vineyard are subtly enhanced in a four-level gravity-fed winery, built into the hillside with a 'living roof' of tussock and shrubs. The vineyards and winery are accredited under Sustainable Winegrowing New Zealand, and organic and biodynamic practices are being introduced.

Sauvignon Blanc that says “zing!”. Pinot Noir that seductively whispers “spice”. Full flavoured “frisky” Pinot Gris that plays on the tip of your tongue. That’s what we live for. When a glass is raised for the first time, it’s a moment full of promise. If the first sip makes a good impression, we’ve done our job right. If it fails to amuse your palate, we go outside and flog ourselves with vine clippings. Take our word for it, we go to extraordinary lengths to make amazing wine every time.
